About Rekindle

Rekindle has been helping people recover from mental illness since 1997. In 2014 we began to focus entirely on supporting young people aged 16 to 25. Using our recovery model, we aim to support every aspect of a young person's life; housing, relationships, work, training, finances, self-worth, confidence, and much more. They are enabled to make lasting changes, become part of the wider community and given a voice in the running of the service. Rekindle aims to remove barriers, to provide early intervention and to improve the resilience of young people.

"Without Rekindle I'd have never have got where I am. When I was falling apart they helped me to piece myself back together."

"Rekindle has helped me through the worst and toughest time of my life."

"Words cannot describe how much Rekindle have done for me, without them I'd live in a hostel and self-harm."
